

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE TALENTED WINNERS OF OUR GENDER EQUALITY ART COMPETITION!

MARGO IN P7

KEIVA IN P6

ANNA IN P4

PETER, JOSHUA & REHAN IN P3

JASMINE IN P2

DILLON IN P1

James Charlies Makeup Journey

James has always loved doing makeup, but he felt like he couldn't tell anyone because he knew that people would say 'that's a girl thing' and he hated how there were 'boy things' and 'girl things'! He just wished that everyone could do the same thing.

One Saturday, James went into the Charlotte Tilbury store to ask the manager if there was a job that he could do. The manger said,

"We will have to see what you can do";

So James went down to the makeup room and put makeup on a mannequin. James really wanted to get this job because he wanted to show everyone that boys and girls don't have to be different and that they could do whatever they like! The manager said,

"I don't even need to think about this! Your makeup skills are phenomenal; you have the job!"

James was overjoyed.

After a while of James working at Charlotte Tilbury, his boss realised that he is fabulous at his job and the manager asked him if he wanted to be the new manager, since he has worked so hard and has amazing makeup skills!

"I would love to!" replied James enthusiastically.

The next week would finish his first full month working as a manager, but James wanted more! He wanted to be a famous makeup artist! He wanted the full world to know his name! He wanted this so badly because he knew when he was little if there had been a famous boy makeup artist, he wouldn't have had to hide his dream of doing makeup.

A couple of weeks go by and James decides to contact his auntie (who used to be a famous Hollywood makeup artist). James asked if she knew anyone who was looking for an employee.

James' auntie said, "Actually, I do! There is a NYC fashion show and one of the makeup artists has just cancelled because she is sick. You would be perfect! It's on Sunday!"

"Auntie Rachel, it's Friday today so that means it's in two days!" replied James in surprise.

"You will be fine; we have a ticket to watch the show!"

"Okay, I will do it!" replied James.

Once James arrived in NYC, he was all over the news! 'THE FIRST EVER BOY MAKEUP ARTIST IN TOWN!' Once the fashion show was finished, he had loads of journalists wating to get an interview!

"What's something you would say to inspire anyone to be like you?" asked the news reporter.

"Just don't think or care about what anyone thinks about you and just believe in yourself!"

Written by Iris

Man Meets Makeup

Alex used to be a very boyish boy; bugs, dirt and playing with monster trucks. But when Alex discovered makeup everything turned upside down.

It was the weekend and Alex's mother Kate, needed to run some errands. Kate needed a new foundation so they went to a makeup store. Alex had never been to a makeup store and it was mind blowing to him! It was so colourful and there was so many types of makeup there.

"What is that mum?" Alex said in an exited tone.

"Oh that", Kate said off guard, "that is the foundation I need" she said in a slightly shocked tone.

"What's foundation?" asked Alex curiously.

"It's a makeup thing" mum dismissed Alex.

"Oh ok!" Alex said in his usual joyful tone.

After Alex and his mum got home Alex asked his mum,

"Mum do boys wear makeup?"

"Well some boys do but it's not common" she replied with a slightly sad tone in her voice.

"Why?" Alex said in a confused tone.

"Because boys get bullied for it now a days." She said with a sigh.

"Hmmm... can I wear makeup?" asked Alex in a hopeful tone.

"I mean... if you want" replied mum who was slightly shocked and surprised.

"YAY"

Alex was so happy but little did he know his future was about to begin. Alex started doing makeup looks in his free time and he got better every day.

Eventually Alex started a YouTube channel where he posted tutorials on how to do different makeup looks. Soon after, Alex started getting sponsors for his videos! He was so excited! Then Alex had a great idea. He decided to start a makeup brand of his own.

"Mum?" called Alex.

"Yes dear", replied Kate.

"I think I have an idea."

"Oh and what is this idea?" mum asked with a curious tone creeping in to her voice.

"I want to start a makeup brand" hesitated Alex.

"That sounds like a lovely idea", mum joyfully replied.

"Thanks mum!" he shouted as he raced up the stairs to start sketching the logo for the brand.

But then he realised how late it was and decided to do it in the morning.

In the morning when Alex woke up, he already knew how the logo would look it would be an oval that had an A and G inside which stood for his initial from his names, Alex Green. Alex thought it was awesome so he got straight to work. But then Alex had a thought.

"Won't I need to move out if I start a business?" Alex realised to himself. Alex could move out if he wanted to because he was nineteen after all. He didn't want to move out though, so he decided to just focus on the business right now.

Three years later, business is booming! Alex moved out of his mum's house and life was great! He was still making YouTube videos and Alex was beginning his journey to fame and everything was perfect.

By Alsa

SHORT STORY WINNERS!

SHORT STORY WINNERS!

NOT a normal princess story

Once upon a time, in the land of fairytales, there was a princess called Evalyn. She had wavy long blonde hair and ocean blue eyes. Evalyn spent her days inside a beautiful castle. From what anyone could see she had a perfect life, but what they couldn't see was the pain of squeezing into corsets and pink puffy dresses that were two sizes too small and also putting on what felt like five gallons of makeup. Just the thought of it made her skin crawl. As Evalyn got older, she had had enough of it all and decided to change everything.

Ever since Evalyn was a little girl, she watched from her window as all the warriors killed the dragons and ogres, and ever since that she thought to herself "i want to do that". So, one day she told her mum, who was the queen, about it. "No!" Her mum said. "Don't be silly! You're a princess, you can't be a warrior that's for boys!" 7 years later, when Evalyn had turned 15, she decided to escape and achieve her dream, so she trained and trained and trained until one day she was ready.

Having decided she was leaving, Evalyn had mastered every trick in the book for becoming a great warrior and the only thing she needed was a rope to escape. Then one day suddenly someone climbed through the window. "AAAAAAHHHHHH" "Who are you!?" screamed Evalyn. "I'm Theo and I'm here to rescue you." "Well, I'm sorry but I think I can rescue myself" "ok then.....". Before Theo left, Evalyn remembered she needed a rope. "Wait!" replied Evalyn. "Could I climb down the rope?" "Sure!" said Theo. So, they climbed down the rope and started walking.

When they got far away from the castle Evalyn said thank you to Theo "no problem, I better leave now." replied Theo sadly "No, you can stay" said Evalyn. "Where are we going then?" "The warrior training camp" "are you sure?" said Theo worriedly "they are very about boys only" "yes, I'm 100% sure."

At the training camp there was a massive sign that read "BOYS ONLY". Ignoring this, Evalyn decided to knock on the metal doors anyway. When someone answered they shouted "didn't you read the sign!? Its boys only! Go back to your castle!" "Just give me a chance!" begged Evalyn. "Fine." Evalyn took one of the uniforms and went to get changed. The uniform was hard metal armor and not that comfortable but to Evalyn anything was better than her princess gown. When she went to the training area, the leader let out 50 ogres and she beat them easily. Then he got a massive dragon that within 1 minute she had killed it. The leader was speechless. "Wow you're the best ive seen! You're now officially a warrior. And from that day on Evalyn has been the best warrior in history.

By Kara

Fair houses!!!!

"Great work today Liv and Bella, you can give yourself 40 house points," said Mr Peters. The two girls went over to put them up happily, but Bella realised something but didn't say.

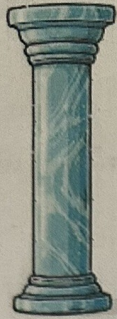

As they were walking home Bella just blurted out "why are all the schoolhouses named after males!?" Liv stopped; there was a moment of silents.... "hmmmm your so right we need to stop this!" Liv announced. "No offence Liv but your ideas never work". Laughed Bella "offence taken!" said Liv. "Ok what about the time you tried to fly using a microwave, egg, carboard box and a single match!" laughed Bella again. "That was one time!" said Liv. "Ok and the time" started Bella "ok ok i get the point, but please Bella". Interrupted Liv. "Oh, ok fine" sighed Bella.

All Sunday they worked on posters and why it should be changed to make it fair on both genders.

On Monday they proudly marched up to the head teacher's office and displayed their work. Impressed by their effort, she decided to hold a vote.

Yes, they had won the fair vote, and they were all celebrating when David burst out in tears. Everyone stopped, "what's wrong David" asked Liv. David started crying even harder." M... my..... best friend..... just died of cancer"! He had tears streaming down his face. So, in the loving memory of Joan aka Davids best friend they called one of the houses Marrie curie and the other one Ann frank because they thought she was a strong female.

So, from then on everyone was treated fair and the houses fair were 2 and 2 the end. (: (:

The Story Of Gender Equality

by Nivaan P4B

Once, there was a town named Eakville. In the town, there was a school named Eakville Primary School. A boy named Royle studied in P6. He wanted to be a tailor because he helped his mum sew clothes. But the other boys bullied him because they thought Royle got into a girl's job (they thought so!).

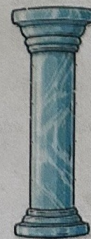

So he used to come home every day crying. One, Two, Three days, every day the same thing. His mother was so angry that she even called the school and talked to the head teacher, but still, those boys kept bullying him. After some weeks, a contest was arranged to create or make something new that's unique. On reaching home that day, Max wasn't upset; No crying, no telling mom any bad news, just telling mom happily about the contest. His mom was very happy (Yes VERY happy!) So his mum gave him a table, balls of thread and the 2 needles that he needs.

The day before the contest, back home, he made a T-shirt with BLAZING shades of blue, red and green. On the day of the contest, he proudly stood up on the school stage and showed his creativity. Alas! There was a silence of astonishment. He was declared the winner! His mum was so proud of him.

So he grew up and became a tailor master! The news was spread over the world like wildfire! But those boys who used to bully him bumped into him and guess what happened next. No, they did not bully him. Instead, they asked him, " Please help us stitch like you? Or at-least stitch this for me?!" And he said, " Ofcourse. Remember me? I'm Mister Royle, who wanted to be a tailor guy from your school?"

Moral Of The Story – Anybody can do anything. There is no difference or bias about any particular task or hobby of boy or a girl. We are same but different too and we should respect each other's choice or liking.

THE END!

It doesn't matter what your gender is you can join whatever club you want.

By Aria Walker, Age 8

There once was a girl named Stacey, she really wanted to join the school football team, but all the boys said, "no you won't be good because you're a girl". Her brother Rory really wanted to be in the school drama club, but all the girls said, "You won't be good at it because you are a boy".

Their mum told them that they can do whatever they want to do, it doesn't matter what your gender is.

The next day Stacey and Harry went to the school office Rory to sign up for the drama club and Stacey for the football team.

By the time they got home, Stacey had her blue uniform with her purple number eight on the back, and Rory had his Harry Potter robes, wand and glasses for the Harry Potter play next month. Stacey and Harry were both extremely excited because Rory had his drama play next month and Stacey had her first football match in a few weeks.

Over the next couple of weeks Rory and Stacey worked super hard at football practise and drama club. Stacey was super nervous because it was the night before her first proper football match her team was the bluebirds the team she was playing against the koalas they played in grey

Stacey's football match was amazing she was goal keeper and didn't let a goal in and the rest of her team scored ten goals her mum and dad set up a surprise party at soft play with Stacey's friend Holly and Rory came as well

A few days later it was the night before Rory's drama play he was super nervous but he was sure that he would be amazing he could barely sleep

Rory's drama play was amazing he was superb he didn't forget a single line his mum and dad also set up a surprise party at soft play with his friend Jack and Stacey came as well

By the end of the month Stacey and Rory both had a wider achievement award at school Stacey got it for winning her first football match and Rory got it for doing such a good job in his drama play

They were super happy that their mum had told them to do what they wanted to do and not to listen to bullies and kept going to football practise and drama club Stacey had won five more games and Rory had done three more plays

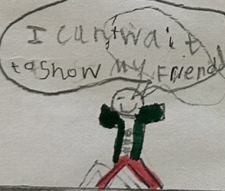

SHORT STORY WINNERS!

SHORT STORY WINNERS!

Bobby

Judger

Jimmy
↓

LPS+ander

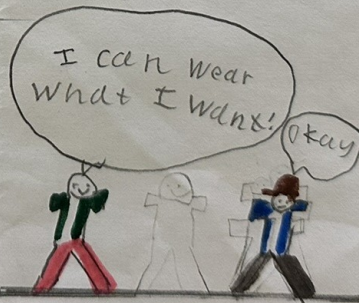

Chapter 1
Jimmy was walking down the street with his pink shorts.

Chapter 2
but Bobby said Boys don't wear that and laughed

but Jimmy stood up for himself

Chapter 3
Bobby knew that Jimmy was happy how he was and Jimmy spent the rest of his day at being happy!

by Louis P36

SHORT STORY WINNERS!

Once upon a time there was a girl called Samie
 her brother called Samie
 she loved football
 their dad said girls cant
 play football and boys cant play with dolls. they were sad saw this she was a nice mum
 She said "that's not right!"
 boys can play with dolls
 girls can play football
 can play with any toy you like. the dad came over and said you are right because
 Pink the End. I like

2A/10
Jasmine

Comic Strip

A girl is playing football	A boy is dancing	'A twist in the story is coming'	The girl helped the boy play football.

The girl turned into the queen of football.	This is the queen's crown.	They went home.	They lived happily ever after

Sofiya Pla